Judy Peters brought meeting to order at 1:03PM

Introductions

CIO Subcommittees
Standards
Steve Gast-3 Standards have been reviewed.
      1. Email
      2. Email Naming
      3. Email Directory

Email-Exchange is the standard, but others are being utilized. There have been some wording modifications from the currently adopted version.

Email Naming-It's the recommendation of the committee to have at least of the email names be in the format of fname.lname@iowa.gov, whether this be the primary or an alias. Discussion arose on the Group 4 agencies, and that there might be more of an impact.

Email Directory-Active Directory (AD) is the current standard. AD is a logical consolidation of local directories, not a physical consolidation.

Of the above three standards, only the email directory is still in draft form, the others are current enterprise standards.

Copies of these will be sent out to CIO soon for comment—feedback will be 2 weeks. These will come from Carol Stratemeyer and will have the information that was included in today's discussion. If there is minimal comment, then the next step is to open them up for public comment.

Greg Gay noted that once these are released for comment, please be sure to comment on both parts you like and those you dislike.

JCIO Updates-John Gillispie
The Microsoft EA is underway. There is concern about what was proposed, and that it will not be accepted.

There is concern that Microsoft intends to "rent" OS and Office package.

Steve Gast noted issues with DOT's intent to enter EA. DOT may not have a return on investment if the cost is more than what was proposed, even after 5 years.

Comments were made about going to Open Source, however it was quickly stated that Microsoft owns 90% of the market and this is easier said than done.

Other Business
Rich Jacobs made statement that Bull Information Systems is looking to meet with other state agencies about enterprise data warehouse benefits. They're offering to assist in expanding the vision to other state agencies, so some agencies may be contacted.

Greg Fay introduced Wayne Hauber of ISU and he did a presentation on Bots and Botnets.

Power Point presentation is available online, and Greg will be sending out this information via email.

Steve Gast made comment on consolidated purchasing efforts and that we should remember to include our purchasing agents in how we buy.

Next meeting is May 26th, Grimes South Conference Room.

Meeting adjourned at 2:45PM
